

ENTERPRISE OVERDONE.

The struggle between the big dailies of San Francisco for the supremacy of the field of California has resulted in special trains, balloons, relays of horses, special cables, etc., etc.

Just now the Chronicle and Examiner are sending their special trains into the surrounding country with extra editions, and raking and scraping the old world with a fine tooth comb for special dispatches. If some of the events which are cabled across the sea were to happen in Alameda, none of the papers would record them. The contest between the papers has ceased to be an intellectual contest. In order to pay for fast trains now special cables and balloons, some other department must be stinted. With the increase of enterprise one sees a marked deterioration in the local and editorial departments. A good writer can no longer get a decent salary on any of the papers which are no indulging in these peculiar gymnastics of enterprise. The staff has one or two trained men to supervise the matter written for the paper, and that matter is furnished by a parcel of young and callow Berkeley graduates, who get from $8 to $12 per week. Everything they write is soft, gushing and veale, and handicapped by a redundancy calculated to sicken an intelligent reader. The motto of those papers is no longer "Boil it Down," but exactly the reverse.

Amid all this bloating of language, splurge and sputter, froth and gas, the reader hardly knows where to look for real news. Yet, after all one cannot blame the newspapers, for the half crazy people of California seem to like the idea, and are probably more in the humor to pay to see a clown turn a triple somersault than to waste money on Booth, giving an intelligent reading of Hamlet. Journalism at the Bay has become a red fire and stage thunder affair, with dried peas rattled in a skillet masquerading as real rain.

A Suspicious Looking Transaction.

The California law governing the management of the Yosemite Valley says that there shall be no monopoly in the supplying of those things which are requisite for the accommodation of the public, yet, according to the San Francisco News Letter, the Commissioners have turned over to Messrs. Hoffman & Kenney, for the sum of $1,200 per year, the privilege of keeping the only livery stable allowed in the valley, and the sole right to furnish visitors with saddle horses and teams. Tourists are not even allowed to bring their own horses into the valley. In its financial aspect, too, the present arrangement smacks of a gross job, continues the News Letter, the purpose of which is to fleece the public and enable the firm in question to acquire a rapid fortune. The rates which this firm are allowed to charge have been fixed by the Commissioners at the maximum figure allowed by law; so high, in fact, that the firm can clear from $200 to $500 per day throughout the season of five months. At a low estimate the firm makes a profit of from $30,000 to $50,000 in the season, and as the traffic to the valley is steadily increasing of course the profits are increasing. This profit is preposterously out of proportion; indeed it may be truthfully designated highway robbery. The whole system is wrong.

Ready to Enlarge.

The extension of the Nevada and California Railroad is to be built so it can be changed from a three-foot to a standard gauge in one day's time. The cuts, banks and bridges will be all extra wide and heavy. The ties will be eight feet long instead of six, and the rails 35-pound steel, so if the business justifies, it can be made a part of the main overland roads at any time it connects with the Oregon Short Line or the Northern Pacific and give Western Nevada an outlet. There is no doubt at all about the means being abundant in the hands of the owners of the road, and Colonel Heriot, their General Manager and agent, is an enthusiastic advocate of a rapid extension until a connection is made:

—The Virginia Chronicle says enthusiastic spectators offer to wager two to one that Con. Cal. & Va. shares will sell for $60 before they drop again to $15, and give as grounds for their faith the indisputable fact that there will be a far larger area of ore exposed in the mine by the first of July than when the stock sold for $55 last December.
